

From our very first days in Phnom Penh and in Siem Reap, FCC has been the meeting place for intrepid adventurers, locals and visitors from around the world – where, in colonial settings perfect for conversation, good food and drink have always been the order of the day. And, where over a great repast, sharing of information and telling of stories big and small, myths have been born.

The Guardian 9, September 2005

FCC, Siem Reap, Cambodia FCC is for travelers who like their colonial atmosphere pared down and contemporary. Set in the grounds of a former French governor's holiday home.....The atmosphere recalls colonial setting, the style is confidently contemporary and the prices belong to a forgotten era.

Hotel Design 28, April 2008

FCC Angkor presents guests with the opportunity to experience world class cuisine in a thoroughly unique setting. The stylishly casual FCC Angkor restaurant and bar offers a variety of dining options throughout the day from freshly baked breakfast pastries through light and healthy lunches to innovative gourmet evening meals.

The Nation – Thailand 8, February 2011

After trekking around Angkor Wat, this Siem Reap club is the best place to unwind after a long, hot day of touring the spectacular temples of Angkor Wat in Cambodia, the Foreign Correspondents' Club in Siem Reap provides a glorious retreat for tired travellers to relax and reflect upon Angkor's ancient wonders.
